“Alright, I’m just adding in the final ingredient.”

Nathalie could tell that Gabriel was nervous despite his tone being void of any shakiness or other indicators to his true feelings. After numerous failed attempts there was no possibility of him feeling anything other than apprehension. Nathalie shared that same feeling herself, despite being an entire floor away from the bubbling potion and any potential consequence.

Not that Nathalie hadn’t wanted to be up in the secret lair too, supporting him as he endured failed attempt after failed attempt while trying to guess the correct recipes for kwami power-ups as hinted to in the grimoire. Unfortunately the instructions it contained weren’t exactly clear but Gabriel figured that if Ladybug had found the right ingredients, surely he could too, even without the help of the guardian. At least he had agreed to being on call with Nathalie so she’d get updates in real time, even from her desk.

Despite having helped Gabriel decode the grimoire as much as she could and guessing possibilities for the final missing ingredients, he had ordered her back into the safety of the Atelier while he continued on attempt number five. Partly it was because Adrien would be arriving home from school soon and if he decided to come looking for Gabriel then Nathalie could cover for him, but the main reason was to keep her safe from the possibility of the potion going wrong. He wasn’t blind, he could see the toll that the peacock miraculous was taking on Nathalie. The last thing he wanted was a failed potion making her condition worse.

Nathalie wasn’t focusing on her work, the company emails seeming significantly less important than the outcome of the latest potion attempt. Gabriel had been getting extremely frustrated with their lack of achievement with any of the upgrade recipes. She worried that he was staring to get reckless.

Focusing on nothing else, Nathalie swore she could just hear the tiny sound of the autumn crocus’s petals hitting the bubbling concoction through her phone speaker. She longed to be up there with him, prepared to either congratulate his success or comfort another failure. Instead she felt chained to her desk.

The sound of the petals sizzling in hot liquid was only just detectable until it exploded into a blistering bang, an indication of yet another failed attempt. Nathalie wouldn’t have been so concerned if she hadn’t heard Gabriel coughing and sputtering in the background.

And then there was only silence.

This disturbed Nathalie more than the coughing. Fearing something had gone terribly wrong, Nathalie desperately asked, “Sir, is everything alright?” She cradled the phone right up to her ear so that she could hear even the faintest response. All she could hear was something that resembled a soft groan.

Fearing that whatever had gone wrong had rendered her boss unconscious, or worse he was hurt, Nathalie rushed towards Emilie’s portrait and entered the secret code quicker than she ever had before.

There was still about half an hour before Adrien was scheduled to arrive home so leaving the atelier unstaffed wasn't much of a problem. The last part of Nathalie's professional brain had her turning to the company email address and phone number to send out automatic out-of-office messages to anyone who may attempt to contact them.

Nathalie instinctively covered her mouth with her right arm and batted away at the purple mist that filled the lair once the elevator had come to a halt. She hadn't expected an interaction this big with this certain combination of ingredients. No wonder Gabriel had started coughing.

None of their previous failed attempts had resulted in a reaction this big. Usually there was either no change or it turned a sickly brown colour with a little normal grey smoke. Nathalie mentally reprimanded herself. It had never occurred to her that this trial-and-error approach could actually be this dangerous. She'd have to apologise to Gabriel for thinking he was too paranoid.

The next thing Nathalie noticed after the mist was just how how warm she was feeling. She unconsciously tugged at the collar of her turtleneck in an attempt to relieve her discomfort. She had half a mind to just rip the garment off but her main objective was finding Gabriel so she quickly pushed the thought out of her mind and endeavoured not to allow her mind to linger on the strangeness of the sensation.

"Ugh." A tense and desperate groan echoed from the far end of the lair. "Nathalie!" Her name came out high-pitched and with a panicked urgency that Nathalie had never heard from Gabriel before, even when he was hopelessly losing to Ladybug.

With the thickness of the haze, Nathalie could barely see a few feet in front of her. In a split-second decision, Nathalie transformed into Mayura and used her magical peacock fan to blow away the excess purple mist.

It wasn't long before Nathalie could make out Gabriel's silhouette. He was still standing by the table the potion had been set up on, but he was doubled over, griping the side of the table in what Nathalie feared was pain. Not wanting to be exposed to the broken miraculous for longer than she needed to, she de-transformed as soon as she could locate Gabriel's whereabouts.

After just a few steps towards Gabriel's location, Nathalie had unavoidably inhaled some of the strange purple gas. She couldn't help but notice the way her nerves suddenly felt electric and extra sensitive. The need to find Gabriel overwhelmingly grew and she knew on some strange yet instinctual level that he would be able to fix whatever these sensations were. She wasn't sure if there was a slight wetness between her thighs or if she's expecting the worst, so hyper vigilant of how her body is reacting that her brain was automatically exaggerating what it was feeling.

Either way that wasn't what she should be focused on. As Nathalie approached Gabriel it becomes apparent that he was doubled over by the table where the magical concoction had been brewing. One hand appeared to be clutching his stomach while the other was griping the edge of the table tightly, to the point where his knuckles had turned white. His eyes were squeezed tight and his other facial features looked pinched in discomfort. His white suit jacket and grey vest were in a crumpled heap at his feet, leaving him in just his white dress shirt.

This was enough for Nathalie's fears that Gabriel has been hurt to be validated. She rushed over to his side. "Gabriel! Are you okay?" Nathalie cried, but it didn't appear as if her boss had heard her at first so she placed a hand on his back in between his shoulder blades, both as a way to let him know that she was there and as a comforting gesture. That's when she noticed how much his chest was moving and realised Gabriel was panting.

He flinched away from her touch and at first Nathalie was confused. Gabriel had never reacted so negatively at her attempts to comfort him before. She didn't reach out for him again, but she stayed close. "Sir, are you hurt?" She asks, her voice quieter but no less urgent. Gabriel responded with a deep, strangled groan.

Deciding to give Gabriel a moment before attempting to touch him again, Nathalie turned her attention to the smoking pot, still spewing out its magical vapour. Thinking quickly, she grabbed the closest jar and dumped the contents out, paying no attention to the sound of witch hazel falling to the floor and scattering.

Careful not to spill even a drop, Nathalie holds her breath as she pours the failed potion into the jar, only releasing it when the lid is screwed on tight. The glass almost instantly fogged up with purple but no more leaks into the lair.

By the time Nathalie turned her attention back to Gabriel, he is looking up at her and she is taken aback by how disheveled he looked.

His tie had been loosened and the top few buttons of his shirt were undone. His hair, normally gelled back immaculately, was now messy and sticking to his forehead with sweat. His face was flushed, and his pupils were dilated to the point where they appear black. She didn't miss the way that they raked down her body.

But the biggest change was the very apparent bulge stretching the fabric of his pants. Nathalie's eyes widened as she noticed the unmistakable erection, and her cheeks flushed with a mixture of surprise and embarrassment. She had never seen Gabriel in such a state before, and the sudden realisation of his arousal left her momentarily speechless. She quickly averted her gaze, feeling a wave of heat spreading through her own body.

"N-Nathalie." Her name comes out as a strangled whisper. "I... I'm not sure what's happening."

Nathalie cursed the way her body reacted to the sight, despite the way her brain screamed in protest. His claustrophobic gaze was directed at her and so intense that she felt warm and exposed under it.

She quickly shook the lewd thoughts away and willed herself to think rationally. They were both still being affected by the mist the failed potion had produced and Gabriel had been surrounded by it and breathed it in for longer than she had. There was no telling how dangerous the side-effects could be. One thing was clear, it was imperative that they get away from the remaining mist in the lair as quickly as possible.

The only problem with that was that she'd have to touch Gabriel to guide him out of the lair. He was clearly in no condition to walk unaided. She moved towards him slowly, not wanting to startle him again. She ignored the fact that her heart-rate increased significantly with the closer proximity.

"There's a problem with the potion. Another wrong ingredient, but this time it's dangerous." Nathalie explained as quickly as possible but Gabriel wasn't reacting much so it was hard to tell if he could hear her or if the potion's effects had completely overwhelmed him.

"Nathalie, please," Gabriel's voice trembled and it stung Nathalie's heart to hear him sound so broken. She needed to fix this. She wasn't exactly sure what he was pleading for but she was convinced that just getting him down to the atelier would do him good.

"I'm going to guide you to the elevator. Is that okay?"

Gabriel gave a shaky nod, his eyes not being able to leave her. They tracked her every movement as she walked closer.

Trying and ultimately failing to not focus on the way she could directly feel the heat radiating off her boss, Nathalie wrapped one of Gabriel's hands around her shoulder and let him lean on her, taking on as much weight as she could manage.

They shuffled forward slowly with Gabriel stooped over, unable to stand up fully straight. His head lolled over and rested on Nathalie's shoulder, dangerously close to her neck. She ignored the sound of his long pants that were inches away from her ear.

Nathalie gritted her teeth as she pulled them both along, determined not to let him fall. But she knew her muscles were weakened from the peacock miraculous and her arms were already starting to ache. There were already beads of sweat forming on her brow. She just had to hold out for a little bit longer.

They might have made it if it hadn't been for Gabriel's hand slipping down from her shoulder. It hovered over the dip of her waist for a moment before travelling further down. Nathalie could feel the light brushes of each individual fingertip. She could hardly breath as it settled on her rear.

And then he squeezed.

The groan that leapt from Nathalie's lips was absolutely filthy. In an instant she clamped them shut but she could still hear it reverberating in the large room. A mixture of arousal and shock coursed through her veins, leaving her momentarily paralysed. Time stood still and all she could hear was her heart thundering in her chest.

"Please," Gabriel whispered again, stretching the word out directly in her ear. Nathalie's voice caught in her throat has her brain malfunctioned. She couldn't deny that she wanted him and now here he was, wanting her.

Tension crackled between them. The weight on Nathalie's shoulder disappeared. Her mind raced, torn between the inappropriate nature of the situation and the undeniable surge of pleasure that coursed through her body.

It's just the effects of the potion. He isn't himself. Nathalie tried to reminder herself. None of this is real.

She turned her head to look Gabriel with the intent of reminding him who he was, what he was doing all of this for. She'd get him to that elevator even if it meant she had to drag him there. She was stopped at the sight of hunger in his eyes dazed with desire and the words died before they have the chance to be uttered. The sheer intensity of his gaze was enough to send liquid lust trickling down her spine.

In that moment she knew, if he asked again she wouldn't be able to say no. And that was a terrifying, exhilarating thought.

She needed to fight against it. She should have wanted to.

She didn't.

"I need you." Those three words were all it took for Nathalie Sancoeur to break. Her rational brain died as she was overcome with emotions she had so desperately attempted to keep buried.

"I'm here." It shouldn't be so much of a surprise, when it came to Gabriel she always strived to please.

She gave him three little nods and everything exploded all at once. It all happened so quickly that she isn't sure which one of them moved first. In an instant, Gabriel had captured Nathalie's lips with his own while her hands had run up his back and tangled into his hair, pulling him close.

The world around them dissolved into a blur. Gabriel kissed her like a drowning man coming up for air. It was desperate and messy and felt oh so right. With one hand still massaging her ass and the other settled between her shoulder blades, Gabriel pulled Nathalie as close to him as physically possible. Now that he had her he didn't want to risk losing her. The small voice in his head that had been crying out for Nathalie since the explosion isn't satiated like he'd thought it would. All it had done was grow in intensity.

With how closely they were pressed together it would have been impossible for Nathalie not to be reminded that Gabriel was hard. Butterflies exploded in the area of her lower stomach where the bulge prodded and Nathalie let out an automatic whimper.

She never thought she could want anything as badly as she wanted Gabriel in that moment. As if it had a mind of its own, Nathalie's right hand wandered away from Gabriel's hair, trailed down his chest and hovered directly over his crotch. Even without touching it she could sense how much it was straining against its fabric prison. She tentatively extended a single finger and tantalisingly slowly brushed from the bottom to the top of the bulge.

This triggered an instant reaction in Gabriel who growled and jutted his hips forward. With his mouth otherwise occupied with Nathalie's own, he had to resort to silently pleading. And if his actions weren't obvious enough, Nathalie already knew exactly what he wanted. She wanted it too.

Taking pity on the desperate supervillain, Nathalie cupped him delicately in her hand and squeezed gently yet firmly. The red of her cheeks darkened as she felt his hard dick faintly pulsating, even through the red fabric of his pants.

While Nathalie was occupied Gabriel had found a new obstacle that needed to be resolved. After peppering kisses down his assistant's jaw and behind her ear, he was abruptly stopped by her bright red turtle neck. This would simply not do.

Getting rid of her blazer was easy enough but the turtle neck posed a greater challenge. He thumbed the hem of it while deciding what to do next. Not wanting to move Nathalie's hands away from him for a second time he chose a much more destructive yet convenient option.

When Gabriel slid his fingers between the tight fabric and Nathalie's delicate neck he revelled in the feeling of her pulse fluttering against his skin. Once his fingers couldn't go any further he gripped on tight to the offending garment and pulled in opposite directions. Nathalie gasped at the sound of her top ripping but she made no attempt at protest. In fact she had an overwhelming sense of relief, like the deep parts of her she normally kept restrained had just been released.

Gabriel stared at Nathalie's finally bare neck and shoulders with an almost childish glee. Preferring to always kept them covered up, Gabriel could count the number of times he'd seen them on one hand.

A million dirty fantasies that he had squashed down as deeply as they could go, ones that he had never allowed himself to even explore, had just shot back up to the surface. The carefully crafted damn had exploded, but with the way Nathalie was looking at him, they weren't going to stay fantasies for long.

Now that the opportunity had presented itself he didn't waste time putting his mouth to work, nipping and biting down her neck. Nathalie's skin was electric under his touch. Her hands stilled as he scrapped his teeth tenderly across her collarbone but Gabriel didn't mind. The urge to leave his mark on her overwhelmed him. A primal need for everyone to know that she was his.

By the time Nathalie restarted her task and had gotten his belt undone, her neck and shoulders were bright red from blush and blooming hickeys. Gabriel thinks she's never looked so lovely.

Nathalie wrapped her right hand around his cock and gave it a few experimental jerks. Her direct touch now unrestrained by clothing had him feeling like a madman. How could anything feel so good? She'd barely touched him and he was already searching for more.

Growing bolder by the second, Nathalie leaned forward towards the tip, gave it a soft lick and was rewarded with salty pre-cum. That little hint of warmth was nowhere near enough and Gabriel absentmindedly found his hand snaking to the back of Nathalie's bun, which was barely keeping its shape with the few remaining bobby pins, and guided her closer.

Gabriel came to the conclusion that Nathalie's mouth was heaven in an instant. She clearly knew what she was doing. Gabriel wasn't entirely sure why that fact surprised him, she was a grown woman after all. He mostly attributed it to the fact that she had been working for him for well over a decade now and during the time she'd lived at the mansion she hadn't gone out much. Not that he had much time to ponder. Nathalie's tongue curled around his dick's length and all coherent thoughts were dashed from his mind.

"Oh merde," Gabriel cursed under his breath when Nathalie's eyes peered up at him from her position on her knees. They were slightly narrowed in a sultry expression but Gabriel recognised something else. She was silently asking if she was doing a good job.

He could have very easily said something to reassure her, to calm her nerves but that didn't seem like enough. He wanted to show her. He wanted to reward her.

As much as he didn't want to remove himself from their current arrangement, the prospect of witnessing Nathalie flustered in even more compromising position was encouragement enough. A flash of confusion flashed over his assistant's face as he withdrew and only grew when picked her up off the floor in one fluid movement and cradled her in his arms bridal style.

"Where are we going?" Nathalie asked as he began to walk away from the elevator. He was quick to cut her off with a passionate kiss, his tongue sliding into her mouth effectively silencing her. He walks towards the large table it had been working at, the only type of furniture in the entire lair. He stumbles a couple times on the way there due to Nathalie squirming around in his arms until she finally occupies herself with sucking on his neck.

The potion supplies are still scattered all over the surface of the table so he was forced to set Nathalie down on her feet in front of it instead of on it. In one fell swoop he wiped all of the ingredients and equipment, including the potion-filled jar, off the table with one hand. The jar bounced a couple times on the floor but thankfully didn't break. With Gabriel's present state of mind he hadn't even consider that to be a potential danger.

By the time his attention returned to Nathalie she had already rid herself of her ripped turtleneck and pants, leaving her in only her underwear. His heart rate rose at the sight. Wanting to catch up, Gabriel fumbled with his pants while Nathalie helped with his dress shirt. She indulged once the fabric is removed and ran both hands over his chest.

Gabriel's fingers dug into Nathalie's loose bun and with a yank her remaining hairpins cluttered onto the ground in high-pitched clangs. Now freed from their confines, her wavy dark locks effortlessly tumbled down and settled across her back and trailing down her shoulder, mildly obscuring her breasts.

Picking up Nathalie once again and setting her to sit on the edge of the table, Gabriel was quick to kiss her once again while his hands wandered to her more intimate parts. Not that this was necessary as she was already thoroughly soaked but Gabriel wanted to be extra certain. No matter how rich and powerful he was, he was still a gentleman.

Nathalie had always thought she simply wasn't someone who wasn't that vocal in bed, not letting out more than gasps and soft, breathy moans. For Gabriel, she screamed.

The second he entered her, she experienced sheer and unadulterated bliss. Somehow he fit her completely perfectly, without a single flaw, and effortlessly hit all of her sweet spots. Nathalie was overwhelmed with the sensation of finally being complete for the first time in her life. Gabriel felt completely satisfied in a way he'd never anticipated was possible after Emilie.

Both sides of the party were too intoxicated on lust from the failed potion to completely realise the enormity of what they had both just discovered, they were a perfect match for each other.

They were too caught up in the frenzy of new sensations. Gabriel's hands were in constant motion, grabbing at any place he could. He needed to feel all of her at once and alternated between cupping her breasts, tracing nonsensical patterns on any free skin, raking his fingers through hair strands and desperately circling her clit.

He pounded into her repeatedly, hitting all the right spots and driving Nathalie absolutely insane. She writhed and wiggled underneath him, jutting her hips up to meet his thrusts, leading to him hitting even deeper than she thought possible. They were both completely lost in the intoxication of the moment.

Just when Nathalie didn't believe she could take anymore, Gabriel applied the exactly right amount of pressure on her clit. Stars burst from her eyelids as her world turned white.

Their position had changed by the time she came back to her senses. They had both fallen backwards meaning that Nathalie's back was pressed against the surface of the table with Gabriel laying on top of her. He was softening cock was still inside her with sticky white cum dripping onto the wooden surface.

Gabriel made no attempt to move away from her. Instead he lay on his side and cradled Nathalie in his arms, burying his nose into her neck while they both recovered from the exertion.

Little by little Nathalie's mind cleared and with it came an impending sense of dread as she realised what exactly they had both done.

She had just fucked her married, supervillain boss. And she'd liked it.

End Notes

Honestly I've had this fic idea floating around for a while and now it’s finally happening! Was originally intended to be a one shot but now I’m considering exploring the angsty aftermath if anyone is interested in seeing that.
