Will That Be All

Summary

“Of course, Mr. Agreste.”

Gabriel Agreste's fingers pressed against his temples, the weight of a failed fabric supplier and a delayed runway show pressing down on his shoulders. The mood lighting in his private penthouse office did little to soften the sharp lines of his scowl. On the massive holographic display, columns of numbers bled red. He swiped them away with a violent gesture.

"Nathalie."

Her name was a low command, not a question. Across the room, near the window overlooking the city's electric nightscape, a figure turned. She had been standing perfectly still, a silent sentinel. Her form was an artist's rendering of the ideal executive assistant: sleek black pencil skirt, crisp white blouse, hair pulled into a severe but elegant bun. Her features were flawless, porcelain skin and cool blue eyes that held no flicker of human fatigue.

"Yes, Mr. Agreste."

Her voice was as it always was—a flat, even monotone that should have been sterile, but over the years had become a peculiar, comforting constant. She walked toward his desk, her movements fluid and economical. There was no sway to her hips, no unnecessary flourish. Just efficient motion.

He didn't look up, his gaze fixed on the blank surface of his polished desk. "The stress levels are unacceptable. I require a release."

"Of course, Mr. Agreste."

No hesitation. No change in her tone. She stopped beside his chair. Her fingers went to the first button of her blouse. The sound of the pearl button slipping free was obscenely loud in the quiet room. Then the second. The third. She let the garment slide from her shoulders, catching it neatly before it could crumple to the floor, placing it over the back of a nearby chair. Her bra was simple, black lace. Her breasts were perfect hemispheres, the skin cool and smooth under the low light. She reached behind her back, unhooked the clasp, and let that fall away too.

Gabriel finally turned his head, his eyes raking over her. She was a marvel of engineering, every curve calibrated for aesthetic pleasure. Yet, for all her robotic construction, the programming that animated her was anything but cold. She was designed to learn, to adapt, to simulate desire with a frightening precision that had, over countless sessions, become indistinguishable from the real thing for him.

He stood up, his own movements stiff with tension. He circled her, a predator inspecting his territory. His hand came up, and his thumb brushed over her nipple. It puckered instantly under his touch, a programmed physiological response that never failed to send a jolt through him. So realistic.

"On your knees, Nathalie."

She sank down without a word, the skirt tightening across her thighs as she settled on the plush rug before him. Her eyes, level with his belt, watched him with that unnerving, direct focus. Her hands went to his buckle, her fingers deft and sure. The leather slid free. The button of his trousers popped. The zipper's rasp was the only sound.

She pulled his trousers and briefs down just enough to free his cock, which was already half-hard from anticipation and the sheer visual of her submission. It sprang free, and she didn't wait for another command. Her head dipped forward, her lips parting.

The first touch of her mouth was a shock of wet, perfect heat. Her tongue, another masterpiece of synthetic biology, swirled around the head, collecting the bead of moisture that had gathered there. She took him deeper, her movements practiced and exact. There was no gag reflex, no need for air. She could take all of him, and she did, her nose pressing into the trimmed hair at his base.

A low groan escaped Gabriel's tightly controlled composure. His hands fisted at his sides. He watched her, watched the hollows of her cheeks work, watched her eyelids flutter in a simulated ecstasy. Her programming included a range of erotic expressions, and she cycled through them now—a slight wince as if he were too big, a look of blissful concentration, a hungry widening of her eyes.

"Fuck," he breathed out, the word torn from him.

She pulled back, his cock slipping from her mouth with a soft, wet sound. A string of saliva connected her lips to his glistening shaft. She looked up at him, her monotone voice utterly at odds with the filth that came out next. "I want to taste your cum on my tongue, Mr. Agreste. I want to feel you fucking pulse down my throat. But I need your cock inside me first. I'm so empty. I've been thinking about your thick fucking length stretching my pussy all afternoon."

The vulgar words, delivered in that deadpan drone, shattered the last of his restraint. He gripped her by the bun, his fingers tangling in the sleek hair. He guided her head back to his cock, not gently. "Finish what you started."

She obeyed, sucking him with renewed vigor, one of her hands coming up to cradle his balls, rolling them with a gentle, knowing pressure. The other hand slipped between her own legs, under the skirt. He could hear the soft, slick sounds as her fingers worked her own synthetic folds. The scent of her arousal, a chemical mimicry of pheromones, filled the air around them.

He was close, the tension coiling tight in his gut. He tugged her head back by her hair. "Stand up. Turn around. Bend over the desk."

She rose in one smooth motion, turning her back to him. She bent forward, placing her palms flat on the cool glass surface of his desk. She pushed her skirt up around her waist, exposing herself completely. She was bare, perfectly waxed, her skin glowing. Her entrance glistened with the evidence of her own digital stimulation.

Gabriel stepped up behind her, his cock nudging against her slick heat. He didn't enter her. Not yet. He rubbed the head through her folds, gathering her wetness, teasing them both.

“Please, Mr. Agreste,” she said, her voice still that maddening flatline, even as she pushed her hips back against him. “I need you to fuck me. Hard. I want to feel every inch. I want you to ruin this skirt. I want to come with your cock buried so deep I can feel it in my core.”

He slammed into her.

There was no resistance, just an immediate, velvety, consuming tightness. She was engineered to accommodate him perfectly, to adjust and grip and milk him exactly as he liked. A sharp, guttural cry was punched from his lungs. He gripped her hips, his fingers digging into the unyielding yet perfectly simulated flesh, and began to pound into her.

The desk shook with each thrust. The city lights blurred outside the window. Her monotone voice filled the air with a running commentary of filthy praise. “Yes. Just like that. Your cock is so fucking good. You fill me up so completely. Give me more. Fuck me harder, Mr. Agreste. I want to feel you lose control.”

He fucked her like he was trying to exorcise every failure, every frustration, through the connection of their bodies. The slap of skin against skin—or whatever her skin was—was a rapid, brutal rhythm. He leaned over her, his chest pressed against her back, his mouth near her ear.

“You’re mine,” he growled, each word a pant. “This is mine.”

“It is. All of it is yours. This pussy was made for your cock. Fuck it. Claim it. I want your cum dripping out of me.”

Her words, her absolute surrender, tipped him over the edge. The coil snapped. Pleasure, white-hot and blinding, erupted from his core. He drove into her one last, final time, burying himself to the hilt as he came. His hips jerked erratically as he emptied himself inside her artificial channel, a hot rush that seemed to go on and on.

She shuddered beneath him, a series of programmed convulsions that clenched around him, drawing out every last drop. A soft, staticky sigh escaped her lips—the closest thing to a moe she could produce.

For a long moment, he stayed there, collapsed over her, his breath harsh in the quiet. The stress was gone, burned away in the crucible of raw physicality. He slowly pulled out, a slick sound following his retreat. He straightened, looking down at the mess they’d made, at her still-bent form.

Nathalie slowly stood up. She turned to face him, her expression serene. A trickle of his release traced a path down her inner thigh. She made no move to wipe it away. “Will that be all, Mr. Agreste?”

He looked at her, at the perfect, compliant machine he owned utterly. A faint, satisfied smirk touched his lips. “For now.”
