tu me fais me sentir toute neuve

by argentskyflower

Summary

The vision that greets him upon arriving at his bedroom is nothing short of breathtaking. Nathalie lays in the center of his bed, flushed and panting with the first stages of her heat, surrounded by his clothes. It's a nest, and while some of the suits would be hell to straighten out, the sight of her surrounded by his creations makes his inner Alpha howl with pride.

THE FUCKING A/B/O FIC I'VE BEEN DYING TO WRITE

See the end of the work for more notes

He’s busy negotiating the finer details of a dress with a client when his cell phone beeps, and by the ringtone he knows exactly who it is.

“One moment,” he says sharply, revelling in the way the pitiful little Beta wilts at his tone, and looks at the message.

It's time.

Gabriel's™s breathing picks up. On my way, he types back.

“Something urgent has come up,” he says, putting as much force as he can behind his words. “We will resume this discussion at a later time. My assistant will email you the details.”

He doesn’t wait for a reply before walking out, leaving Marco to scramble after him, making apologies on his behalf. He texts Tom Dupain-Cheng next, arranging for a sleepover and ensuring that Adrien is sufficiently distracted and away from the mansion for the next five days. Then he calls Adrien.

When his son picks up, it’s to Adrien’s heavy breathing, and the faint sound of rushing wind.

“Adrien—"

“I know, Father, I got away as soon as I could. Did you tell—”

“Yes, the Dupain-Chengs are waiting. Have you got everything you need? Clothes, money —”

“I got it, Father, don’t worry about me, I’ve been ready for days!” There’s a hint of a whine to his son’s tone, and Gabriel represses the urge to reprimand him for it.

“Very well. Say safe, son, and remember to text me—”

“Yes, Father, of course I will, just hurry.”

And he ends the call. Gabriel doesn’t quite sprint to the entrance, but he makes it to the limo in record time. Throughout the entire ride, he’s bouncing his knee in anticipation: it’s finally time for Nathalie’s natural heat.

Having been on suppressants for most of her life, Nathalie’s normal cycle had been in a frozen state until she picked up the Peacock miraculous, which cancelled her suppressants and sent her into a Heat-fever so bad that combined with the damage to the brooch itself, resulted in Nathalie nearly dying after wearing it once . He had been forced to ask the heroes for help in reviving her, and in doing so had been stripped of his Miraculous, Emilie being buried after three years of denial about her death, and a lot of sitting by Nathalie’s bedside, waiting for her to wake up so he can grovel at her feet and apologise for everything he put her through.

Then it was months of coming to terms with the fact that somewhere along the line, he had fallen in love with Nathalie, and then it was rebuilding his relationship with his son, and then it was atoning for his crimes by helping the citizens he had terrorised before, and all through that he was helping Nathalie recover while doing his best to convince her that he does love her.

She may be stubborn, but he made his way up to the top of Paris' fashion industry by his own hands and he's not about to give up, not when the prize is the hand of Nathalie Sancoeur.

Of course, if all goes well in the next three days, it'll be Nathalie Agreste soon enough.

Thinking of his name on hers brings a wave of pride and possessiveness that Gabriel couldn't quite suppress. He's sure the driver could feel the pheromones he's leaking everywhere, despite the fact that his driver is a Beta.

As they stop in front of the house, Gabriel all but leaps outside. He unknots his tie and takes off his suit all before he opens the door, and he was right to do so: the entryway is drenched in Omega pheromones. He's suddenly thankful that Adrien is Chat Noir, meaning he had probably escaped the house by window, and the magical suit protected him from the worst of the pheromones.

Gabriel takes a deep breath. The smell of passionfruit and camellia flowers fills his nose, and the click of the door as it locks behind him is forgotten as he runs up the stairs to his bedroom.

The vision that greets him upon arriving at his bedroom is nothing short of breathtaking. Nathalie lays in the center of his bed, flushed and panting with the first stages of her heat, surrounded by his clothes. It's a nest , and while some of the suits would be hell to straighten out, the sight of her surrounded by his creations makes his inner Alpha howl with pride.

Gabriel enters the room, and Nathalie's blue eyes zero on to him immediately.

"You're here," she murmurs. Gabriel doesn't waste time, kicking the door shut behind him and capturing her lips in a bruising kiss.

"I'm sorry I made you wait," he says once they break apart for air. Nathalie keens as he chains kisses down her collarbone, careful to avoid the curve of her neck. There will be time for that later. For now, he focuses on the way her pheromones are triggering his own rut, his lavender and sandalwood mixing with her passionfruit and camellia scents until he's heady with arousal.

Nathalie bites his ear, and pleasure sparks at the base of his spine, racing up to his throat and forcing a moan out of his lips. In return, he bends down and mouths her breast through the flimsy cloth, making sure that he twirls his tongue around the hard nipple while he fondles the other breast roughly.

Her nails tug futilely at his suit, and Gabriel regretfully breaks away from Nathalie to try and unbutton it, but his fingers are shaking too much with arousal and so he just rips and buttons clatter all around their bed. By the blown-out state of Nathalie's eyes, she appreciates his clothes' sacrifice to her cause, and she follows it up by scraping her nails down his chest.

Gabriel howls , pain and pleasure mixing together with every red line her nails make. He tugs her camisole off her body, for a moment he's stunned at her beauty, the contrast between her pale, flushed skin and the dark bedspread, the array of colours that form a halo around her. She's a goddess, and he's the lucky worshipper at her feet.

"Why'd you stop?" Nathalie says hoarsely, and Gabriel's heartbeat stutters.

"I love you, Nathalie," he vows, "I love you so much," and his voice breaks on that last word. He'd wasted so much time.

But Nathalie has always understood him, even when he doesn't understand himself, and her hand gently cups his cheek. "I love you too," she says. "Now come here."

At her words, the haze of an Alpha rut overtakes Gabriel, and the world disappears around him and his mate.

His lips trace her blush down to her core, where she's bare and dripping and he draws his tongue through her slit. Her answering moan is music to his ear, and her hands grasp the back of head, pulling on platinum blond strands as he curls his tongue against her clit, circling the pearl hidden in her folds.

Nathalie's voice rises in volume and desperation, and Gabriel introduces his fingers to the equation, slipping two into her heat and curling them before rubbing, looking for that one hidden spot—

Nathalie screams as she comes. Liquid honey drips down onto Gabriel's chin and he couldn't help the growl of pride that comes out of his throat; the knowledge that he brought his mate to the heights of pleasure is more intoxicating than the finest wine he's ever tasted.

He kisses his way back up her body, and as she comes down from her high he knows she can taste herself on his lips and he cannot help but grind his clothed cock down where her core is.

"I want—fuck," Gabriel gasps out, his hands burying themselves in her hair. Nathalie's answering laugh is trapped in his mouth as he kisses her.

"That's the plan, now take these off," she replies, tugging at his slacks. Gabriel removes his pants in record time and tosses them somewhere behind his back. He'll deal with them tomorrow. Right now, Nathalie is shaking, the full effect of her heat bearing down on her, and instinct drives him to turn her over on her arms and knees.

The sight of his mate's curved back, glistening with sweat, and the way her unbound hair hangs down nearly undoes him. Gabriel, through sheer strength of will, holds off on the primal urge to simply take Nathalie. He has to be be slow, to take care of her; this is is her first natural heat after all, and she's still fragile from the broken Miraculous—

“Gabriel, please—!”

His resolve cracks like shattered glass. Gabriel roars and buries his cock into her with one swift move.

From there it’s a blur—the Alpha rut overtakes him as he pounds into her, feeling her walls clench around him with every thrust. He can feel his knot growing with every plunge, and wild desperation fills him at the sight of her bare neck.

Gabriel covers his mate’s body with his, feeling every ripple in her body with every thrust he makes. As the base of his cock grows thicker, he licks the base of her neck, tasting the heady mix of sweat and pheromones only an Omega can make. Except this isn’t just any Omega, this is Nathalie, and Gabriel takes a tentative nip of her bare skin as his knot expands.

Nathalie’s back arches as his knot slows down his thrusts, and he hugs her close as ecstasy roars through him. His rough pounding slows down to shallow thrusts as his knot locks them both, and Gabriel’s teeth sink into the side of her neck.

As blood and saliva mix in his mouth, his silver eyes roll back into his head at the mind-numbing pleasure of it. Distantly, he registers Nathalie’s answering scream as she comes, and the feel of her belly rippling as she shudders with the force of her climax.

Gabriel licks the wound on her neck, feeling euphoric when he sees the row of teeth marks on her flushed skin. He shifts them both to rest on their sides, content to bury his nose into Nathalie’s hair and breathe in the mix of their pheromones.

They’re bonded now. He’s knotted firmly into her, and every few minutes she would clench and a mini-orgasm would steal his thoughts away in a haze of pleasure.

When the knot finally deflates, Gabriel slips out of her and gently arranges her pliant body into a more comfortable position. His inner Alpha sings with pride in taking care of his mate.

His mate. Gabriel couldn’t quite hide his grin as he bends down to press a soft kiss on her lips.

“Are you alright?” He asks.

Nathalie’s only response is a hoarse hum. Gabriel chuckles as he leaves their nest in search of sustenance. Part of the bonding process involves the Alpha taking care of their Omega after every coupling, and Gabriel is determined not to fail in this regard.

Good thing he’s made sure the kitchen is well-stocked. After getting two bottles of water and a tin of biscuits, he walks back to the bedroom to see Nathalie sitting cross-legged on their bed, one hand placed on her belly.

“Do you think…?” she trails off. Gabriel hands her a bottle of water and cracks open the tin.

“It’s too soon to tell. Eat first, you need your energy.” he says, and offers her a biscuit. As she takes a bite, he takes a deep breath. And another.

There's something there. It's too faint for him to sense, and admittedly he's out of practice identifying scents after so many years, but there's something there.

The thought that he might have gotten Nathalie pregnant on their first try makes Gabriel's smile just a little more smug.

Said woman narrows her eyes at him. Now that they're bonded, he has no doubt she can sense the pride that nestles in his chest at the thought of Nathalie with a rounded belly, his Mark on her in full display for the world to see.

Nathalie shakes her head with a small smile. "Oh Gabriel…"

"What?"

Instead of replying, she presses a soft kiss to his lips, too fast for him to deepen it. "I love you."

He surges forward, nearly knocking the bottles over in his haste to chase her lips. Through their newly established bond, Gabriel tries to push every bit of love and affection he has for the woman underneath him, and her answering wave nearly bowls him over in its intensity.

He might have wasted a lot of time before, but he vows with all his heart that he will never do so again. Not when the price is Nathalie, and the family he's building with her.

"I love you too, mon cœur," Gabriel whispers against her skin, and as her heat rises again he gladly loses himself in her embrace.

End Notes

Completely inappropriate to the tone of this whole fic but I typed all of this under Sunroof (Thomas Rhett remix) on repeat.

On another note, we don't have enough ABO fics in this fandom. (Insert the "I'm doing my part!" gif here)
